Some days you just cannot do anything right. While we try not to make MIS-IRAMES, they do pop up here and there, Actually, it's amazing we don't make more of them.

And when two similar events occur almost simultaneously, well, suffice it to say we can mess up as well as the next fella.

So, in order to get us back in the good graces of both these organizations. PILAME plan to attend the Crystals' party Now. Tand the Actually our Lall-brook. Street mathian and Carole Kameen's briother...Jim McKusker. Great way of promoting the HIP.

Gordon Avenue progress

The reconstruction of Gordon Avenue on the city's south side is progressing well.

According to city managing director Marian P. Judge, the construction crew is working on surface drains.

"He's getting done what he expected to before the bad weather," Indee told the Care.

"Carlon I Judge, city managing director, told the MIRROR last week that someone else had expressed an interest in providing cinders to the city.

When he spoke with the MIRROR last week, Judge said he had not received a letter from that second person and could not wait much longer before buying the cinders.

"He's getting done what he expected to before the bad weather," Indee told the Care.

"Carlon I Judge, city managing director, told the for that amount.

Meanwhile, city officials hesitate spending city monies there for fear that they would be surfaced for expending monies outside the city.

"He's getting done what he expected to belore the bad weather," Judge told the Carbonalale Mirror last week.

The work is being carried out by the Loomis Construction Co. of Montrose.

The city's managing director had previously told the MIRROR that the firm will place temporary pave over any areas they dig up.

This will prevent the street from becoming a mudhole during the non-construction scason.

Work on the project will continue next spring.

School crossing

Concerned parents of St. Rose Elementary students brought before the last council meeting their concern for students transported by bus to the school.

They told how the students were let off the bus at the Sacred Heart High School building at Seventh. Avenue and South Church Street.

From there, they told the solons, the students walk across Seventh, up Church, and then cross Church to the school on Terrace Street.

The parents asked for a crossing guard to make a pair of suggestions.

MORRIS and city says it is ready for snow

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Sparaney, 130 Spring St., Carbon-dale, in St. Joseph's Hospital, Carbondale. The month of November means Veterans' Day, Thanksgiving, and snow.

Although the area has had some "snow showers' already this fall, the first stick-to-the-road, tie-up-traffic snow has yet to strike the area.

But when it does the City of Carbondale will be ready.

"For all intents and purposes," the city's managing director Martin P. Judgetold the Carbondale Mirror last week, "the city is ready."

The equipment is ready the declared.

The city sonowas different things.

This has resulted in materials which clog surface drains, often solidifying like concrete.

To prevent that this year, the city sond for bids on.

To prevent that this year, the city sond for bids on.

As a result, there were no bids when council was to act upon buying cinders at its last meeting.

The cuipment is ready the declared.

The city's managing director told the MIRROR that this year the administration will "play the work schedule by ear."

The department lost five men to the city's budgetary cuts and to compensate for that, Judge told the MIRROR that the isy ear, the administration will "play the work schedule by ear."

The department lost five men to the city sond to compensate for that, Judge told the city managing director told the solons of Wednesday fast week, he had not spoken to the department's unionized employes about either move.

Material-wise, the city has already ordered 50 tons of rock salt through a cooperative buying agreement with the Lackawanna County Council of Governments.

This agreement is allowing the city to buy rock salt for $26.66 a ton, saving, Judge estimates, about a dollar a ton over what the city would have spent if it had gone it alone in buying the rock salt.

Judge noted that last year the city, buying through the cooperative agreement, spent spents was ulmost. The low bid that year, when the city sought them, was over $25 a ton.
